Partner with Dining

Team up with dining services to help reach a larger audience.

- Does your dining hall already organize study breaks, midnight breakfasts, or other special events during finals week? Find out how you can add a fair trade flair to those existing events through signage, tabling, and other activities.
- If campus dining doesn't have any events planned, offer to organize something together or ask if they can support your tabling event by providing extra fair trade coffee and tea.
- For suggestions and best practices on how to successfully partner with dining, download our Working with Dining Services Guide.

Hold a Raffle

Connect with dining services and the bookstore to make a goodie basket of fair trade items to raffle off at a tabling event!

- Holding a raffle at your event can help draw more attendees, and gives you an opportunity to collect emails or grow your group's social media following.
- Never organized a raffle before? Check out this handy resource on how to run a successful raffle.

Partner with an Existing Event

In the lead up to finals week, numerous groups on campus will host events to prepare and rejuvenate the community.

- Gauge the landscape and offer to ‘fair trade’ another group’s event by sharing resources and samples.
- Reach out to other clubs and departments to see if you can set up, sample, and promote fair trade to a new audience. Don’t forget to follow up afterwards to continue building the partnership!
